Take a Full Year Off?

"It is a matter of taking the plunge and just do it."

Here a dentist and his colleague share their experience:—

In 2003 we felt ripe for our "Holiday-of-a-Lifetime" and off we went! Our reasons? Well, life is short and to quote Mallory's saying, "Because it's there". Besides, not everyone lives until pension-day and many who do are just too worn out to be able to fully enjoy life by then. With a little forward planning most dentists can "Seize the Moment" by taking a full calendar-year off. You may become particularly optimistic after also taking into account obvious tax-advantages!

We decided not to employ an unsupervised locum dentist as we were yearning for a real holiday. Unfortunately shutting our clinic made our staff redundant for twelve months, but this is of course also an opening for them to travel and explore new work opportunities. We were lucky to have staff with a positive free-spirited attitude and after the year was up they wanted to come back to our refreshed and upgraded dental surgery. We sent out a newsletter well in advance to all our dental patients and informed them about our plans...
